The SSL (Secure Sockets Layer) is the most powerful encryption available on the Internet. This means that any information related to your credit card is encrypted when being sent to us, so no one else is able to read it.

Having a secure server takes the risk out of your credit card transactions. We also do all order processing on software that is separate from the Internet, so there is no danger of anyone gaining access to your order information. We do NOT keep your credit card information on file. While we realize this reducing future ordering convenience, we feel that the safest way to protect your credit card information is not to store it, but request it each time your purchase.

Please note: that email is not encrypted and not considered a secure way to transmit your credit card information.
